Proven Savings

According to Gartner, a leading industry analyst, the average company is spending up to 3% of its total revenue per year on document output. Meanwhile, International Data Corporation (IDC), a leading market intelligence firm, found in a June 2010 study that a well-executed MPS program can reduce costs up to 28%. OKI Printing Solutions' experience has been no less dramatic. A recent engagement with a school district in New York, whose optimization plan identified a potential cost savings of 30%, actually realized a 60% decrease in document output costs after one year.
